Feminist Media Demand an 'Abortion Drone Army' to Start 'Revolution'

While the military uses drones to kill terrorists, feminist activists plan to use them to kill unborn babies.

A Dutch abortion activist group, Women on Waves

(<http://www.womenonwaves.org/en/page/5636/abortion-drone--first-flight-to-poland>), recently flew (<http://www.womenonwaves.org/en/page/5832/first-abortion-drone-flight--a-success--women-in-poland-receive-medical-abortion>) “abortion drones” loaded with abortion pills across the border from Germany into Poland, where abortion is prohibited in most cases. A willing audience, feminist media applauded the move, from Jezebel demanding an “abortion drone army” in the U.S. to Dame Magazine alluding to a “drone-led abortion revolution.”

In a “symbolic act,” two Polish feminists who weren’t pregnant, swallowed the pills (mifepristone and misoprostol) once the drones landed. However, German law enforcement did not support the demonstration. Police confiscated (<http://jezebel.com/poland-has-abortion-drones-we-need-abortion-drones-1716176296>) the drones and attempted to press criminal charges even though Women on Waves claimed (<http://www.womenonwaves.org/en/page/5636/abortion-drone--first-flight-to-poland>) the delivery wasn’t prohibited by law.

That didn’t stop the media from commending the abortion feminists.

For Jezebel, Natasha Vargas-Cooper wrote a July 7 piece (<http://jezebel.com/poland-has-abortion-drones-we-need-abortion-drones-1716176296>) arguing, “Poland Has Abortion Drones. We Need Abortion Drones.”

Using all caps, Vargas-Cooper expressed her excitement. “BUT HOW FUCKING COOL IS THIS WHOLE STORY? ARE YOU READING THIS? LET’S BUILD AN ABORTION DRONE ARMY,” she wrote. “Next stop, Texas—who’s with me?”

She wasn’t alone. Since the endeavor began, feminist media have raced to cover the drone project.

“[L]et me be the first to say: Send in the drones,” wrote (<http://www.damemagazine.com/2015/06/22/can-we-please-get-abortion-drone>) Robin Marty for Dame Magazine in June. Marty spoke of a “drone-led abortion revolution,” and asked, “How can we get a drone here in the U.S.?”

For Think Progress, Tara Culp-Ressler decided

(<http://thinkprogress.org/health/2015/06/24/3673350/abortion-drone-poland/>) that, “The ‘Abortion Drone’ Is Bringing Women A Safe Way To End An Early Pregnancy,” while Bustle’s Josephine B. Yurcaba called (<http://www.bustle.com/articles/93868-these-photos-of-the-abortion-drone-delivering-its-first-pills-to-poland-are-part-of-the>) the move a “powerful ongoing protest.”

“[The drones] could be an essential tool for providing women with access to abortion,” Refinery 29’s Meredith Clark chimed in. (<http://www.refinery29.com/2015/06/89537/abortion-drone-poland>)

“[I]t’s raising awareness of the insane and cruel obstacles women all over the world still face in the quest for reproductive autonomy,” wrote (http://www.salon.com/2015/06/23/abortion\_drones\_how\_technology\_is\_breaking\_through\_restr) Salon’s Mary Elizabeth Williams.

She also took note of the “anti abortion sites” that are “frothing at the notion of their attempts to control women’s bodies being subverted” and the “reproductive rights opponents” that “chalk up intervention to help women as ‘stunts.’”

Except that they are “stunts,” even according to her allies. For Gawker’s Gizmodo, Kate Knibbs’s piece (<http://gizmodo.com/abortion-drone-is-the-best-drone-1713388194>) (“Abortion Drone Is the Best Drone”) read, “It’s a gimmick, but a worthwhile one.”

Rebecca Gomperts, founder and director of Women on Waves, expressed (<http://rhrealitycheck.org/article/2015/06/26/abortion-drone-will-wont-mean-reproductive-rights/>) hope that “abortion rights groups in the United States might follow her lead someday” to RH Reality Check.

“It also has something fun about it,” Gomperts told the outlet. “Of course you’re not allowed to say ‘fun’ when you’re talking about abortion, but it’s not just negativity and heaviness and suffering. I mean, abortion is also a positive experience for a lot of people.”

This isn't the feminist media’s only project. Earlier this year, journalists hailed (<http://newsbusters.org/blogs/katie-yoder/2015/05/02/feminist-media-hail-satanists-deeming-abortion-religious-belief>) Satanists for deeming abortion a “religious belief.”

Their excuse for unfettered abortion is "It's all about women controlling their own bodies".

...And yet -- they can't even keep from getting pregnant. Some control, eh?

So freaking true. This pill should be called the Mulligan Pill.. Do over pill, like I never had proof of having no control (aka sex) over my own body

You want to see evil, MB?

Here it is, personified. A PP Medical Director, at lunch over several lovely glasses of red wine, discussing the sale of aborted baby parts, and bragging at how good PP is at harvesting these baby parts for sale without damaging them.

WARNING: Graphic, and disgusting beyond belief. I'm a peaceful person, but after reading this, I wanted to break things and certain liberal faces, too. (BTW, I sent this to Tim Graham, in the hopes that MRC will keep an eye out for the deluge of media coverage on this evil group....heh).

"“[I]t's raising awareness of the insane and cruel obstacles women all over the world still face in the quest for reproductive autonomy,” wrote Salon's Mary Elizabeth Williams." And you, babydoll, are raising awareness of the insanity and cruelty of the modern "feminists". And, btw, don't want to get pregnant? Perhaps a drone drop can be arranged to provide you with a roll of duct tape and a map to your knees.

Women are so sick no matter what country. There is so much evil in the world, no love for babies, animals, people, parents and more. Women have become more self serving and want attention like gays, groups using race or color, anti-gun advocates and more. I am a pro-life woman, and do not like killing babies or others that are using lame excuses to get their way.
